Educational Objectives:

In this workshop, you will learn how to:

- Learn about major theories for the development of suicidality, as well common myths surrounding suicide.
- Identify relevant risk factors that are associated with higher rates of suicide, as well as protective factors that buffer us against suicidality.
- Review current understandings of how suicidality intersects with mental health diagnoses.
- Learn about current guidelines for the assessment of suicidality, including common warning signs and screening tools.
- Review approaches for the competent treatment and management of suicidality in clients, with an emphasis on the Collaborative Assessment and Management of Suicidality (CAMS) approach, an Evidence-based treatment for suicidality.

Workshop Description:

Are you aware of the most recent research, and do you feel truly confident in dealing with suicidal clients? We want to help you feel empowered and prepared because every therapist needs a thorough understanding of this sensitive and stressful topic.

In this workshop, we will explore the latest research and approaches concerning risk factors, successful evaluation, and evidence-supported therapeutic methods, all geared toward aiding mental health professionals in effectively supporting clients grappling with suicidal thoughts. The workshop will delve into contemporary perspectives on crisis intervention, stabilization, and long-term care, equipping clinicians to deliver compassionate, skilled, and empowering assistance to their most vulnerable clients.
